

Name: Marlo Shaw

Is the vision of the draft Plan one in which you can share?:

I see a few possibilities for the Gaelic speaking and I hope that this plan will benefit a language that was almost forgotten. I am very happy this has been done.

In the light of your response to the above question, are the proposed sectoral projects essential to the meeting of the action area aims for 2012? If not, why not?:

I think most of those proposed will be essential so that Bord-Na-Gaidhlig will be brought to it's furthest potential.

Are the outcomes for the twenty themes and the priorities for tackling them correctly outlined and prioritised? If not, why not?:

Yes from what I read on the proposals I am hopeful all that is outlined in said themes will all be priorities and taken seriously.

In the light of your response to the above question, what projects do you view as being essential to implementing these priorities (some examples are offered in Appendix I)?:

Being able to publicly use the gaidhlig language where and when it is necessary and where it can be used by those wishing. More than several languages are spoken in several countires including the U.S. why shouldn't Gaidhlig be allowed to be spoken in it's own country.

And are the right organisations identified as being the primary players in implementing these priorities?:

A few more could be included were it necessary to help in the implementation of the Bords' proceedings.

If you are responding on behalf of an organisation, how do you see yourselves contributing to the success of the National Plan?:

I am responding as an individual who has wanted to see Scotland free and able to function as a free country including the rights to speak it's own language.

Do you have any other comments on the draft National Plan which you would like to submit?:
